Policies for Diving Programs

All students enrolling in diving programs must have DAN (or equivalent) diving accident insurance appropriate for the level of diving (e.g. at least Master level for technical diving).

Policies pertaining to Recreational Diver Programs:

A 50% deposit is due upon enrollment into a course. This deposit is non-refundable unless a medical condition results in disqualification from participating in a scuba course. Full payment is due upon commencement of the course. Failure to provide full payment at the time the course begins may result in cancelation of the course, in which case the deposit will be forfeited.

Students who demonstrate a lack of commitment and attention to the course requirements may be disqualified from the course. If the course has not yet begun, only the deposit will be forfeited. If the course has begun, no refunds will be issued. Examples of this would include repeatedly cancelling dives or academic sessions, not showing up for dives or academic sessions, demonstrating unsafe and/or negative attitudes. In the case of medical issues, consideration will be given as each circumstance requires.

In addition to the above requirements, all technical diver students will be required to read and sign a "Student Agreement" that outlines all requirements, expectations and policies concerning students who do not pass a course. As these courses require a great deal of commitment of both time and money on the part of the student and instructor, it is essential that prospective students have the opportunity to review the requirements for a given course. Prospective students will be provided this document and will have the opportunity to read it prior to signing, and prior to officially enrolling into the course. Once the agreement is signed, it is binding.
